(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, the State Bank of India Act, 1955, the Companies Act, 1956, the State Bank of India (Subsidiary Banks) Act, 1959, the Industrial Development Bank of India Act, 1964, the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970, the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1980 and the Depositories Act, 1996 as amended by the said Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of those Acts, as amended by this Act.

The Depositories Act, 1996 provides, inter alia, for a legal framework for the establishment of depositories for dealing in securities. However, the said Act allows only securities of companies to be dealt in a depository mode. The securities of statutory bodies like the Industrial Development Bank of India, Unit Trust of India, State Bank of India and other banks established under the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970 and the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1980 could not be dealt in a depository mode. In order to remove this lacuna and also to give effect to certain consequential changes, the Depositories Related Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 1997 was promulgated on the 15th January, 1997 amending the Depositories Act, 1996, the Companies Act, 1956, the Industrial Development Bank of India Act, 1964, the State Bank of India Act, 1955, the State Bank of India (Subsidiary Banks) Act, 1959, the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970, the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1980 and the Indian Stamp Act, 1899.

Distribution of cases amongst Judges of Special Court.

- 3. After section 5 of the principal Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—
 - "5A. Where the Special Court consists of two or more Judges, the Chief Justice of the High Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Special Court is situated may, from time to time, by general or special order, make provisions as to the distribution of cases amongst the Judges and specify the matters which may be dealt with by each of such Judge."

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the principal Act, as amended by the said Ordinance, shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the principal Act, as amended by this Act.

The above Bill has been passed by the Houses of Parliament.

The Special Court (Trial of Offences Relating to Transactions in Securities) Act, 1992 was enacted on the 6th day of June, 1992 to provide for the establishment of a Special Court for the trial of offences relating to transactions in securities and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. Section 5 of the Act confers power upon the Central Government to establish a Court called the Special Court consisting of a sitting Judge of the High Court nominated by the Chief Justice of the High Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Special Court is situated, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of India. The Central Government established at Mumbai in June 1992 a Special Court consisting of a sitting Judge of the Bombay High Court, Justice S.N. Variava for dealing with the cases under the aforesaid Act.

- 2. Since establishment of the Special Court in 1992, about 2,910 matters have been filed before the Special Court. In addition, the Central Bureau of Investigation have also registered 70 cases relating to irregularities in transactions of securities and in 18 cases charge-sheets have been filed in the Special Court.
- 3. With a view to expediting disposal of cases pending in the Special Court, it has become necessary to appoint additional Judges in the Special Court. As Parliament was not in session, the President promulgated on the 16th January, 1997 the Special Court (Trial of Offences Relating to Transactions in Securities) Amendment Ordinance, 1997 (6 of 1997) to provide for appointment of additional Judges in the Special Court and also to provide for assignment of cases amongst them.

2. The Bill, if enacted, would involve non-recurring expenditure of rupees two lakks and recurring expenditure of rupees ten lakks per annum.

Repeal and Saving.

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the Ordinance so repealed, shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of this Act.

The Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India (IRBI) was set up under the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India Act, 1984 (62 of 1984), with the main functions of acting as a principal credit and reconstruction agency for industrial revival, to co-ordinate similar work of other institutions engaged therein, to assist and promote industrial development and to rehabilitate industrial concerns. Subsequently, the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985 was enacted with a view to securing timely detection of sick and potentially sick companies owning industrial undertakings and speedy determination and enforcement of such measures as may be required for such companies. With the passing of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985, inter-alia, the Board for Industrial and Financial Reconstruction (BIFR) was set up in 1987. With the setting up of the Board, the burden of reconstruction is being shared by different stake holders including development financial institutions and banks. Thus it became necessary to redefine the role and functions of the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India.

- 2. As the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India was predominantly engaged in reconstruction and rehabilitation of sick companies, its assets structure got heavily burdened with non-performing assets. Provisioning in accordance with the Reserve Bank of India guidelines has adversely affected the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India's profitability and performance parameters. Several changes in the financial sector during the last five years have also made it vital for financial institutions to raise funds largely from the capital market. The Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India's ability to compete in the existing financial regime would, therefore, depend on its ability to access the capital market so as to mobilise resources competitively and transmute them into quality loan assets.
- 3. To deal with these problems and in particular to ensure greater flexibility and consequent ability of the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India to respond to the needs of the fast changing financial system, the Industrial Reconstruction Bank (Transfer of Undertakings and Repeal) Ordinance, 1997 was promulgated by the President on 24th day of January, 1997. The Ordinance provides for the establishment of a new Company under the Companies Act, 1956 to be known as the Industrial Investment Bank of India Limited to which the entire business and functions of the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India as well as assets and liabilities and the staff of the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India will be transferred on the appointed day to be notified by the Government. The aforesaid Ordinance also seeks to repeal the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India Act, 1984. Conversion of the Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India from a statutory authority into a company would also assist it to reshape its business strategy achieve greater managerial autonomy and operational flexibility, to enter the capital market for equity and debt and to create a more level playing field across other broadly similar financial institutions.
- 4. The Bill seeks to replace the Industrial Reconstruction Bank (Transfer of Undertakings and Repeal) Ordinance, 1997.
